Materials
- dinosaur outlines
- scissors or craft knife
- camera

15-20 minutes

It's fun to imagine all the different colors and patterns that dinosaurs might have had a long time ago! We usually think about them as green and brown, but who says that there wasn't a pink Parasaurolophus? We just don't know! With these outlines, you can find colors and patterns around your house, yard, and neighborhood to bring the dinosaurs to life! This is a great way to engage your kids during a walk or just to practice your colors!

Instructions

1. Print out the dinosaur outlines on the next few pages. Normal copy paper works fine, but a thicker paper, if available, is best.

2. Cut out the outlines, leaving the center open. An adult can use a craft knife and cutting pad to cut out the outlines, or use scissors to cut around the outside and simply reconnect the edge with a piece of tape!

3. Get out and explore! Can you and your dinosaurs find every color in the rainbow? How many colors can you find around your house? How about around your yard? If you need a little inspiration, look at the second page of this activity for examples!
