Maryland

The greater part of these arms were issued to Volunteer Militia companies outside of Baltimore, using the warehouse of Woolford & Patterson in that city as a distribution point. On 19 April 1861 this warehouse was broken into by a pro-Southern Baltimore mob and everything there taken—some 370 infantry muskets and a small number of cavalry arms and accounterments. These weapons were used to disperse the Washington Brigade of Philadelphia when that unarmed and hapless command tried to march through Baltimore.

Some of the weapons in the hands of the Baltimore Volunteer companies found their way into Virginia, and most of the remainder were seized on the governor's orders in June. This forestalled any large shipments of small arms to Marylanders in the Confederate army and provided a small stock for the new regiments being raised. Thereafter the state appears to have played no part in procuring arms for its volunteer and home guard commands save through U.S. Army sources. It ended the war with little or no stock of serviceable shoulder arms.

During the reorganization of 1867 the state was obliged to purchase arms for its new Maryland National Guard in addition to the field artillery material it obtained from the general government. The small arms and related accounterments secured were:

7,943 U.S. rifle muskets (Model 1863?)

7,354 sets infantry belts and boxes

3,000 cavalry sabers (Model 1860?)

3,000 cavalry waist belts

500 light artillery sabers

500 light artillery waist belts

All these items were U.S. regulation patterns, including the belt plates. All were worn until after 1872, when our period ends.

Massachusetts

1,960 Model 1841 rifleman's waist belts and plates purchased from Emerson Gaylord.

1,213 sword and saber belts and plates from the Ames Manufacturing Company, Emerson Gaylord, and others.

285 Savage navy percussion revolvers purchased from the Savage Revolving Fire Arms Company and Smith Bros. & Co., with 51,000 cartridges.

889 sabers and swords, including light artillery sabers, and NCO and musician's swords, purchased from Ames.

900 "saber bayonets" from Ames.

Numerous smaller purchases are detailed in the Annual Report for 1861, including band instruments secured from seven sources, regimental colors and other flags, and six models of field or fortress cannon. It is interesting to note that 1,000 Windsor rifles with complete accounterments and accessories were sold in August 1861 to the state of Maine, 960 more in October to New Hampshire, and 5,000 complete sets of infantry accounterments in the same month to Ohio.

Among the arms given Massachusetts troops departing for the front were bowie knives. These were not state issues but the gifts of friends in a company's home town; and while this occurred in all states, it seems to have been an especially common practice in Massachusetts. There these belt knives were often presented by town governments, one to each soldier. The practice did not last long, however, and the Massachusetts infantryman soon found the knife marked him as a green soldier and he gave it up willingly. The types presented are described in Peterson, American Knives, pp. 25–70.

Although Mr. Crowinshield, Massachusetts' agent in Europe, had been unusually successful, and sufficient arms had been secured for the 1861 regiments, the state could not count thereafter on the general government for all her ordnance needs. In 1863 and 1864 she contracted with S. Norris and W. T. Clement, of Springfield, for 3,000 Model 1863 rifle muskets. These arms were of standard pattern (see p. 120) but were marked on the lock plate with an eagle between "U" and "S" and also "S.N. & W.T.C./FOR/MASSACHUSETTS" and the year.

After the Civil War the state followed the lead of the general government in seeking a suitable breechloader. About 1867 or 1868 she purchased a substantial number of Peabody single-shot cartridge rifles in caliber .433, made by the Providence Tool Company of Providence, R.I. (see p. 122). These were issued for trial and were retained in use for about eight years. In 1875, 19 of the 60 infantry companies active in that year were armed with the Peabody rifle, the other 41 still had Springfield muzzleloading rifle muskets, caliber .58. In 1876 the Peabodys were withdrawn and all the infantry began to get the Springfield breechloader, caliber .45; by the end of the following year Massachusetts infantry was "fully equipped" with the .45–70.

Mention has already been made of the infantry accouterments ordered by the state from James Boyd & Sons, of Boston. The Model 1855 cartridge boxes for caliber .58 ammunition which were included in these sets were stamped on the inner flap in a double oval: "J. BOYD & SONS/MANUFACTURERS/OF ARMY/ACCOUTREMENTS/BOSTON." They corresponded closely in size and design to the U.S. regulation box.

Surviving examples permit us to identify some of the other patterns of accouterments issued Massachusetts regiments. The knapsack carried by Private John B. Frothingham of the 5th Infantry Regiment is one such item. It was a rigid wooden box type, 15 in. wide, 3.5 in. deep, and 12.5 in. high, covered with unpainted canvas. The straps, two of which encircled the knapsack, were made of russet leather. On the rear was painted in black: "J. B. Frothingham/ 10th Co./5th Regt/M.V.M." Frothingham also carried a tin canteen covered with brownish gray cloth, a patent mess kit, and a white linen visored havelock stamped "Soldiers Relief Society/Bunker Hill".

The Short Patent Knapsack (see page 208) was carried by a number of the later Massachusetts regiments, including the 53rd and 61st. It was manufactured in Salem.

Finally, an unpainted cotton canvas haversack with a removable inside bag (see page 212) can readily be traced to the state since it was stamped inside the flap "STATE OF MASS/INSPECTED/ACCEPTED".

Colors and Flags

The flag of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts in the 1850's and 1860's was made of white silk with the state arms applied to both sides. When used as a military color the motto on the reverse was replaced by a regimental or other designation. Blue regimental colors were also used, but as the practice of carrying a national color increased, the blue color was given up. After 1860 the Stars and Stripes and the white state flag were the colors most commonly carried.

The principal collection of Civil War military flags rests in the State House, in Boston. A superficial examination indicates that at least half are of U.S. regulation patterns, while the remainder consists of colors issued by the state, and others presented by local groups and organizations. Without doubt, many flags in the collection are of unique design.

28th Mass.

"I paint civil war miniatures and am currently working on the 28th Mass at Fredericksburg. The kit I'm using was made in Italy and it shows an infantryman in a blue overcoat with light blue piping. I know the 28th Mass wore the overcoats during the Fredericksburg campaign, but I'm not sure about the piping, I try to make the figures as accurate as possible, recognizing that sometimes that's just not possible. Do you know if the overcoats had blue piping? If you don't know, do you have any suggestions as to where I might find out. Thanks for any help you can give me.

Tom,

Mark Herzog forwarded your email to me. It may be that the box artist was thinking of the Federal enlisted infantry "dress" coat. This was a frock coat, i.e., tight fitting with nine buttons down the front, a standing collar and "skirts" that went from the waist to just above the knee. This coat was dark blue, and had branch-of-service piping along the collar and pointed cuffs. For the infantry, this would have been light blue piping. While some regiments wore this coat in battle, most Federal infantrymen wore the simpler four-button "sack" coat. This looks much like a modern men's blazer, and was the "fatigue jacket" of it's day.

In cold weather, the Federal infantry wore an overcoat. The issue enlisted infantry overcoat did not have piping. It was made of wool, dyed light blue (they used the term "sky blue"). Dye lots varied somewhat, so the coats would not be an exact match of shade, but would all be the same cut. The coats were single breasted (mounted men and officers wore a double breasted version), with a cape that came down almost to the elbow (cuff length on the mounted version). could be buttoned, but were awkward to fight in that way. More often, the cape was left unbuttoned except for the very bottom button. bottom corners of the cape, held by the button, were then passed over This pulled the edges of the cape back out of the way. There was a wide cuff that could be pulled down to warm the hands, and the collar stood straight up when the coat was closed (stand and fall full collar on the mounted version), but most men likely left it The buttons were all brass, the large unhooked and partially open. size for all but the cape, which had small buttons.

I hope this is of some help to you. Here is a web site that lists the uniform regulations: http://members.tripod.com/howardlanham/newindex.html

Please feel free to contact me if you need any further information on this kind of thing. I've worked in miniatures before, and I hope to get back to it some day. Good Luck!

had to be armed at the start. Eventually both concentrated on caliber .69 rifle muskets as they were made available by the general government.

In June 1861 a call went out for the return of all state arms and accouterments not in the hands of active, uniformed militia companies, and about the same time a shipment of 1,000 converted muskets was furnished by the War Department. The reserve thus created was used by Minnesota to arm her militia companies and the emergency companies raised for Indian fighting. Such issues are detailed in the several Reports of the Adjutant General. All small arms received by Minnesota troops, after the 4th Infantry Regiment, were furnished by the War Department.

Colors and Flags

The Civil War colors and flags of Minnesota regiments are stored, furled and behind glass, in the rotunda of the Capitol at St. Paul. Very few descriptions or photographs of them have been discovered. Although the state Adjutant General declared in 1880 that no state flags were carried by Minnesota troops in the war, and that no official state flag had even been adopted by that time, the state arms do seem to have seen some use. The regimental color of the 1st Infantry Regiment, for example, has been described as "bearing on one side the coat of arms of our beloved state," and the national arms on the other.

Mississippi

On 10 January 1861 Louisiana troops seized the Baton Rouge Arsenal. On learning of this Governor Pettus appealed to Governor Moore of Louisiana for help and in a short time Mississippi received from this source 5,000 flintlock muskets, 3,000 percussion muskets, 1,000 Hall rifles, six 24-pounder guns with carriages, and a considerable amount of ammunition. In little more than a month's time, then, the state's position as to small arms had improved some 700 percent. Later, when the war had begun and regiments were being formed, Governor Pettus did not have to appeal to the Confederate War Department for small arms. In fact, in May when Secretary of War L.P. Walker asked if the state could furnish "two regiments for twelve months, armed with heavy double-barreled shotguns," the Governor was able to reply: "I think we can send you two regiments with double-barreled guns, and know I could send you five regiments armed with muskets and rifles in ten days."

By 1862 Mississippi had become an important center for the alteration and repair of small arms, handling most of such work for the Army of Tennessee. The state legislature had assisted Jones, McElwaine & Co., of Holly Springs to establish an arms factory in mid-1861; less than a year later the plant was taken over by the Confederate Ordnance Department, becoming the Holly Springs Armory. Confederate ordnance depots were located at Okolona, Tupelo, Verona, and Columbus, all in the northeastern corner of the state near the line of Mobile & Ohio Railroad.

A Mississippi State Armory, with its arsenal, magazine and laboratory, was established at Panola early in the war, probably replacing the arsenal at Jackson. It was forced by the fortunes of war to move from there to Brandon and thence to Meridian; like the armory at Holly Springs and the Briarfield Armory and Arsenal in Columbus, it was chiefly concerned with storage and issue, and arms repair. Some idea of the extent of its operations can be gained from these extracts from its "Reports of Ordnance and Ordnance Stores Received, Issued and Remaining on Hand," 14 October 1862– 1 November 1863:

Items	Received	Issued	On Hand
Harper's Ferry Rifles	15	i i	16

The only weapon of significance produced in the state during the Civil War was the Leech & Rigdon revolver (page 454) whose manufacture commenced in Memphis, Tenn., moved to Columbus, Miss., and finally to Greensboro, Ga.

Colors and Flags

Mississippi had no state flag until one was adopted by the State Convention of 1861. It had a white field and a union of blue; in the center of the flag was "a Magnolia tree," while in the blue union was a white star. The entire flag was bordered with red and a red fringe was attached to the fly end. Like the state coat of arms, adopted by the same body at the same time, the flag seems to have soon been forgotten. Or perhaps it was overshadowed by Harry B. Macarthy's "Bonnie Blue Flag" (written at Jackson, Miss., in early 1861) and by later Confederate flags.

Surviving Civil War battle flags indicate that Mississippi infantry regiments used as a rule the Army of Northern Virginia pattern. Most of these flags were covered with battle honors and some carried the regimental designation (i.e., "48 MISS") at the center of the cross.

and South still lingers. This cultural difference between the North and South spawned the states' rights issues that surfaced decades before the first shot at Ft. Summter and manifests itself still today. It is important that we all realize the terrible tragedy of this war...of slavery...of racism...and condemn the residual hatreds that still exist today. What would we become? Like the Irish and the British? The Jews and the Palestinians? Such hatreds only wreak destruction. Love and forebearance to everyone should be the foundation we stand upon. However...it doesn't mean that one must forget the men, the battles, the places, the dates...the emotions of the fight...the things our ancestors must have experienced while on the battlefield. It must be understood that the thousands of ordinary soldiers like Elbert did not fight to defend "that peculiar institution" of slavery. Rather - it was because their places of birth - their homeland, issued a call to arms. No one thought of doing otherwise - for liberty from "Northern Oppression" was the popular mood in the South.

Upon reaching adulthood, I wrote the Mississippi State Dept. of Archives & History to get more information...and that started an incredible journey for me where I realized that I had many ancestors who had fought in the Confederate armies...imagine that!

Elbert Graham Enlists

Although Elbert lived in the "Davis Community" of Wayne County, MS., it was the town of Shubuta in Clark County that was the closest enlistment point. On August 25, 1861 at 15 years of age, Elbert Graham enlisted under Capt. James Gates. He was told that within the next few months, a new regiment would be formed and his group of enlistees would become part of that regiment. The rendezvous point would be at Enterprise, MS and the date set was the second week of October. Enterprise was a major mustering point for many regiments of central/east MS and central/west AL because it was on the main rail line (Mobile & Ohio R.R.). On October 18, 1861, at rendezvous in Enterprise, the enlistees, some 800 strong were designated the 8th Mississippi Infantry Regiment. Elbert's group from Shubuta was designated as Company F, officers were selected and a nickname was chosen: "The Clark County Rangers". My great-great grandfather would remain within this regiment until the surrender of the Southern armies and parole at Greensboro, NC in April 1865. In all there were 10 Companies created. They are listed below. The links will send you to a text-file roster for that particular company:

Aggregate original enrollment, 841 officers and men.

The regiment was reorganized at Corinth, March 15, 1862, and reenlisted for two years.

The companies that responded to the first call, March 1, 1861, for troops to serve twelve months at Pensacola, began to assemble at Mobile in that month, marched to Pensacola April 10-12, and encamped near Fort Barrancas, opposite Fort Pickens and Santa Rosa Island, held by Union troops. Twenty Mississippi companies having arrived, the Ninth and Tenth Regiments were organized, these numbers being assigned to follow the eight regiments in the State army. The Ninth and Tenth, however, were the first regiments organized and the first in the service of the Confederate States.

General Bragg announced by order of April 17, 1861, that the Ninth and Tenth Regiments had been received (on 14th) in the service of the Confederate States. They were put under the brigade command of Colonel Chalmers. Lieutenant-Colonel J. R. Davis was in command at Fort McRee until May 20, when he was ordered to report at Montgomery and his place was taken by Major Gregory. Immediately after this Colonel Phillips died, and on May 28 the regiment elected Captain Robert A. Smith, of Jackson, Colonel. He was then twenty-five years of age. After some time on the staff of President Davis, Lieut-Col. Davis was promoted as Brigadier-General in the Army of Northern Virginia.

The companies of Captains Barr, Fearn, Wade, Gibbes, Lipscomb, A, D, E, H and I, were assigned to duty as the garrison of Fort McRee, the works nearest Fort Pickens, where they were busied in fortification work, as well as supporting the gunners during the bombardments, for four months.

A detachment from the Tenth formed part of the First Battalion of Gen. R. H. Anderson's expedition from Pensacola to Santa Rosa Island, October 9, 1861, and Surgeon Lipscomb was in the medical staff. Under the Colonels -- Richard Griffith of Jackson, commissioned May 16, 1861, promoted to Brigadier-General; W. H. Taylor; M. B. Harris, wounded and disabled; S. B. Thomas, wounded and captured. Lieutenant-Colonels -- William H. Taylor of Jackson, promoted; Merry B. Harris, promoted; S. B. Thomas, promoted. Majors -- John R. Dickens; William H. Lilly, 1 May, 1862, killed by accident 19 February, 1863; S. B. Thomas, promoted; James R. Bell, 1864. - Adjutant -- W. H. Capers of Claiborne; Sergeant-Major E, H. McCaleb of Claiborne; Surgeon M. S. Craft of Hinds; Assistant Surgeon -- Clark; Commissary John A. Galbraith of Jefferson; Quartermaster -- Bristoe of Yazoo; Chaplain A. A. Lomax of Copiah. (Rietti.)

The companies for the organization of this regiment were assembled at Camp Clark, near Corinth, the post being under the command of Gen. Charles Clark, Army of Mississippi.. Balloting by companies for regimental officers began May 16, and seven ballots were taken before all of them were chosen. Capt. Henry Hughes, of the Claiborne Guards, was the favorite of a large part of the regiment for Colonel. Finally the selections were: Colonel, Griffith; Lieutenant-Colonel, Taylor; Major, Dickens. After the regiment was ready for service it was sent to Union City, Term., to cooperate in General Polk's campaign against St. Louis, but the imminence of conflict in Virginia caused its transfer to that department. On July 9, 1861, telegrams were sent to General Polk and General Clark, asking that the regiment be sent to Lynchburg without delay. It started July 16, and did not arrive in time for the battle of Manassas. . The regiment was posted in northeastern Virginia, and during the winter of 1861-62 was quartered near Centreville, attached to the Alabama brigade under General Rodes.

The above companies were ordered to Corinth and enlisted in the Confederate service May 13-15, 1861, for twelve months. The date of organization of the Thirteenth Regiment is May 14, 1861, William Barksdale being elected Colonel. Soon afterward the regiment was ordered to Union City, Tenn., where it remained attached to the army under General Polk until ordered to Lynchburg, whither the regiment started July 14. Immediately on reaching Lynchburg they were ordered to Manassas, and reached the railroad junction during the night of July 20 and the morning of the 21st, the day of the battle. As soon as possible they were advanced to the field, with much marching and countermarching in the intense heat and stifling dust. The orders were to report to General Longstreet, but for convenience they were attached to Jubal A. Early's brigade, which was stationed in the rear

Sergeant-Major -- Eugene O. Sykes. Quartermaster-Sergeant -- O. S. Holland.

Aggregate original enrollment, 1,034 officers and men. Enlisted for one year, re-enlisted in 1862 for three years or the war.

These were among the fifty companies ordered by the Governor 21 May, 1861, to proceed at once to Corinth and go into camp of instruction under the command of Major-General Charles Clark. At that time the State was also organizing eight regiments in the Army of Mississippi, the Ninth and Tenth had been organized at Pensacola and the Second, Eleventh, Twelfth and Thirteenth had gone to Virginia. The companies were mustered into the Confederate States service for twelve months at Corinth May 27-30, and field officers were elected June 5.

About the first of August the regiment was moved to Union City, Tenn., with the Fifteenth, also organized at Corinth about the same time. August 13 the two regiments were ordered to Russellville for duty in East Tennessee with General Zollicoffer. On the 28th Colonel Baldwin was ordered by Zollicoffer to advance to Fish Springs. On reaching Kentucky the Fourteenth passed under the command of Gen. S. B. Buckner and so escaped the disaster at Fishing Creek to become the victims of misfortune at Fort Donelson. September 28 they were on the march to Greeneville, and October 1, by order of General Buckner, Colonel Baldwin was put in command of a brigade including his own regiment, Palmer's Regiment and Helm's Battalion, E. J. Vasser his Adjutant-General. General Buckner, at Bowling Green, ordered the regiment to garrison Baker's Hill, November 2. The Fourteenth, Twentieth and Twenty-sixth Mississippi and Twenty-sixth Tennessee formed a brigade under Colonel Baldwin, in General Buckner's command.

The Fourteenth, under Major Doss, was sent to Fort Donelson some days before Baldwin was ordered there, from Cumberland City, with the remainder of his brigade, and they were not reunited during the battle. In his report Baldwin gave honorable mention to his Adjutant-General, Lieut. S. D. Harris and Aides-de-Camp Thomas A. Burke and T. F. Carrington (wounded), all of the Fourteenth. Of the battle of Fort Donelson, February 15, 1862, Major Doss reported that while the regiment was moving into position Capt. J. L. Crigler, Company G, was severely wounded by a shell. The regiment was ordered to attack a battery in its front, supported by several regiments of Grant's army, which it did gallantly, fighting for an hour until ordered to retire. Capt. F. M. Rogers, Company E, was killed in this engagement. Later in the day the regiment was engaged with a Federal force that had occupied a part of the Confederate intrenchments. The casualties were 17 killed, 85 wounded and 10 missing. Upon the surrender of the fort, which followed this fight, the regiment, about 650 in number, became prisoners of war. In the assignment of exchanged prisoners October 16, 1861, by General Van Dorn, the Fourteenth was ordered to report to Maj.-Gen. Lovell.

Brig.-Gen. Lloyd Tilghman took command of the First Division of the First Army Corps (Lovell's) of Van Dorn's Army of West Tennessee, at Holly Springs, October 17, 1862, and organized three brigades, the first under the command of Colonel Baldwin, including the Fourteenth Mississippi, Col. A. E. Reynolds' consolidated command, and Col. H. B. Lyons' (Kentucky) consolidated command; the second brigade under Colonel Heiman; the third brigade under Col. D. R. Russell, including his consolidated command and Waul's Texans.

Letters of Charles and James Frierson, Co. F, 15th Mississippi Infantry

Pvt. Charles Currin Frierson, Co. F, 15th Mississippi Infantry

The following letters were written by two cousins in Co. F, the "Water Valley Rifles," 15th Mississippi Infantry. The originals are in the collection of Gay Carter, Charles Frierson's gt-gt-niece, and I am very much indebted to Miss Carter for permission to reproduce the letters and Charlie's remarkable image. Gay transcribed and annotated the letters, and wrote the biography of Charles Frierson which follows. A few notes on the photo ... This image was probably taken in the summer of 1861, shortly after the regiment was formed. Charles wears a version of the distinctive Mississippi state infantry uniform, a jacket or short coat, with trousers, both trimmed probably in red (per state regulations). Black slouch hats with stars were popular among the Mississippians, and Charles also appears to wear a Confederate battle shirt, with contrasting color trim. He has a knapsack, a belt with Confederate frame buckle, and a tin drum canteen. His musket appears to be an early US model, perhaps ca. 1816, with an unusual style of sling.

17TH MISSISSIPPI INFANTRY

(TAKEN FROM "THE MILITARY HISTORY OF MISSISSIPPI, 1803-1898," BY DUNBAR ROWLAND)

Company A -- the Buena Vista Rifles (Chickasaw County, MS)

Company B -- the Mississippi Rangers (Marshall County, MS)

Company C -- the Quitman Grays (Pontotoc County, MS)

Company D -- the Rough & Readies, aka the Rough & Ready Volunteers (Pontotoc County, MS)

Company E -- the Burnsville Blues (Tishomingo County, MS)

Company F -- the Samuel Benton Relief Rifles (Marshall County, MS)

Company G -- the Confederate Guards (Marshall County, MS)

Company H -- the Panola Vindicators (Panola County, MS)

Company I -- the Pettus Rifles (DeSoto County, MS)

Company K -- the Magnolia Guards (Calhoun County, MS)

The above companies were assembled at Corinth and assigned to the Seventeenth Regiment, of which the officers were elected June 4-6, 1861. The regiment was mustered into the service of the Confederate States June 7, at Corinth. June 11 they left there for Virginia and arrived at Manassas Junction June 17.

The Seventeenth and Eighteenth were first brigaded with the Fifth South Carolina, under the command of D. R. Jones, in Beauregard's army, and were under artillery fire near Blackburn's Ford, of Bull Run, when the first attack was made by the Federals July 18. For the battle which Beauregard planned for July 21 this brigade was ordered to cross Bull Run and move toward Centerville. After the Federal attack on the left flank they were ordered back across the run, in which movement they were under heavy artillery fire. Later in the day they again crossed the creek and advanced up Rocky Run toward the Federal encampment, co-operating with Longstreet and Early. In the charge that was made they found the ground impassable and the artillery fire so severe that a retreat was ordered. This demonstration was the movement that so demoralized the retreating Federal army with rumors of being cut of at Centerville. The Seventeenth lost 2 killed and 10 wounded.

From August 13, 1861, to March 4, 1862, the regiment was posted at or near Leesburg, Virginia.

On October 21st the Seventeenth, having been advanced near the Potomac on account of threatened activity of the enemy, was called into the battle of Ball's Bluff, taking position in the battle line between the Eighth Virginia and Eighteenth Mississippi after the fall of Colonel Burr. Colonel Featherston took command of the two Mississippi regiments, which alone, the Virgininns having exhausted their ammunition, marched forward, firing, capturing two cannon and driving the enemy behind a bluff and in the river. The surrender was made to Colonel Featherston, and about 300 officers and men were marched back as prisoners. Lieutenant-Colonel McGuirk was left with a detachment on the field, that secured about 200 more prisoners. Upshaw's company and Fletcher's of the Thirteenth were with the Virginia regiment in its last charge, capturing another cannon. The brunt of the Federal attack fell first upon Captain Duff's command, detached on picket duty at Big Spring, having performed that duty at various posts on or near the Potomac since August 24. The loss of the entire regiment was 2 killed and 9 wounded.

June 29-30 the State was called on for five regiments to be enlisted for the period of the war, the previous enlistments having been for twelve months. July 1 Governor Pettus reported the raising of three regiments, among them Russell's. Companies previously organized and enrolled in the State troops, as noted above, assembled at Iuka, and the requisite ten were in camp after the arrival of the Morton Pine Knots, who left home July 4, 1861.

The regiment was ordered to Virginia, arrived at Lynchburg in August, and on September 13 was ordered to report to General Floyd at Lewisburg. They arrived at Sewell Mountain in the Kanawha Valley September 26. Floyd had been driven back by Rosecrans and Gen. Robert E. Lee had been assigned to command in this field September 21. The Twentieth has the distinction of being the first Mississippi regiment to serve in the field under the command of that great General. Lee took a position at Meadow Bluff and Big Sewell Mountain and Rosecrans advanced to his front late in September, reconnoitered and fell back. Floyd, with his little "Amy of Colonel -- W. B. Shelby. Lieutenant-Colonel -- William E. Ross. Majors -- W. Monroe Quin. resigned; R. J. Durr.

This regiment was enlisted for three years or the war, had its rendezvous at Jackson, and was organized May 13, 1862. W. B. Shelby, of Brandon, being elected Colonel; Ross, of Jackson, Lieutenant-Colonel, and Quin, of Pike County, Major. Corinth was then occupied by the army under General Beauregard, invested by the army under General Halleck, which took possession May 30, upon the withdrawal of Beauregard to Tupelo. About this time the Thirty-ninth was sent to Grenada, where it became a part of the brigade of Gen. John B. Villepigue, who had been associated with the Mississippi troops at Pensacola, and had just returned from gallant service at Memphis. June 12, 1862, Gen. Villepigue, at Grenada, reported that 154 sick of the regiment were there, left when the regiment advanced, unarmed except forty-one defective flintlock muskets. When Villepigue was ordered with his brigade to Vicksburg, June 23, 1862, it was directed that Col. Shelby's Regiment should remain under the command of Col. W. H. Jackson, to protect the northern border.

Company I, Capt. Randel, was part of the command of Gen. M. L. Smith at Vicksburg, during the bombardment of May 20 to July 27, 1862. (VanDorn's list). This company was with the troops that Breckenridge took to Camp Moore, La., immediately after the failure of the Federal attack on Vicksburg, and in the attack on Baton Rouge, August 5, 1862, was attached to the Fourth Louisiana. Casualties, killed, 1; wounded, 1. General

Colors and Flags

The Missouri state flag of 1861—as indicated by one example—was dark blue with the coat of arms of the state in its center. At some later date it was changed to a white flag bearing the arms, but this probably took place after 1872. So far as is known, all Union Missouri commands in the Civil War carried U.S. regulation colors.

Confederate Missouri

Among the companies of the 1st Regiment, Missouri Volunteer Militia, which marched to Camp Jackson in May 1861, was the Washington Blues, an Irish command under Captain

Small Arms and Accouterments

The arms carried by Missouri soldiers in the Confederacy were a mixed lot, as can be imagined. The early State Guard companies were issued weapons seized at the U.S. arsenal at Liberty; these were probably caliber .69 converted muskets. Thereafter they must have depended upon country rifles and shot guns.

The Missouri brigade organized in 1861 was initially armed with flintlock muskets and whatever else was available. In January 1862, at Bowling Green, Ky., the 1st Infantry received caliber .58 Springfields, and this was probably true with some of the other regiments. About May 1863 all the Missouri infantry and dismounted cavalry of General John S. Bowen's division were rearmed with Enfield rifles. All, of course, came from Confederate stocks.

NEBRASKA

Just before our period ended in 1872 the militia of Nebraska consisted of 12 independent companies of infantry and one battery of light artillery.

The 1st Volunteer Infantry Regiment seems to have been clothed initially in gray, but no clear description of the uniform has been found. All other Nebraska volunteers were clothed, armed and accoutered by the U.S. War Department. The scattered militia companies rarely received uniforms and often as not supplied their own weapons and accouterments. There were apparently no distinctive state insignia or buttons in this period and all regimental colors appear to be U.S. regulation patterns.

There was one command that must have presented an unusual appearance. From the Pawnee Indians, traditional enemies of the Sioux, Nebraska was able to raise a company of Pawnee Scouts. The command was enlarged to a four-company battalion and retained in the U.S. service after the Civil War, technically as civilian employees of the Quartermaster Department. Their main job was protecting workmen building the Union Pacific Railroad.

The Pawnees were given Spencer rifles and their uniforms were regulation, but their appearance was usually bizarre. Some wore only overcoats; others wore pants and bare skin above; while still others cut the seats out of their pants so they could better stick to their ponies.

CHAPTER 41

★ NEVADA ★

Nevada was organized as a territory on 2 March 1861; her white population the year before comprised only 6,857 souls. Three and a half years later she was admitted as a state, largely for reasons of national politics. Her population was strongly Republican and pro-Union.

The two battalions furnished by the territory were organized in 1863 at Fort Churchill, Nev., and spent their time guarding the overland wagon roads and the frontier settlements from Indian attack, or escorting exploring expeditions, especially into the Humboldt Valley.

There is no indication that Nevada troops were anything but U.S. regulation clothing, and certainly there were no distinctive state insignia or buttons. Nothing is known of their colors and flags.

New Hampshire

with "N.H." where possible. One result seems to have been the manufacture of an oval brass plate of regulation size  $(3.4 \times 2.2 \text{ inches})$  bearing the letters "NHSM." It was made with eyes for attachment to a cartridge box and with studs and a single hook for use on a waist belt. It was not issued to the war regiments but reserved for accounterments given the Volunteer Militia from about 1862 on.

Small Arms and Accouterments

The small arms owned by New Hampshire in 1851 were few in number and poor in quality; all had been issued originally by the War Department. Small state arsenals were maintained in Portsmouth and Lancaster. At the time there were 8,323 muzzleloading muskets and 2,387 rifles in the hand of the enrolled and Volunteer Militia, and 1,502 and 697, respectively, in the arsenals. Accounterments were nowhere near so plentiful; for example, there were only 2,391 cartridge boxes issued with the more than 10,500 long arms.

The elimination of the enrolled militia left thousands of small arms uncared for and about as many lost. The Adjutant General did what he could to collect this surplus and deposit the guns with the selectmen of towns, as required by law. He found the duty "exceedingly difficult and oftentimes perplexing" and he recommended selling all weapons found to be unserviceable. This action was authorized by the legislature and in 1854–1856 several thousand long arms were disposed of. In this period the annual quota for the state was 228 muskets.

In mid-1857 there were 4,410 flint and percussion muskets, 839 rifles and 216 pistols in the hands of troops or loaned to the selectmen of towns; in the state arsenals were 1,239; 654; and 124, respectively. When the Civil War arrived New Hampshire was able to arm the bulk of her first two regiments with the Model 1842 musket; the two flank companies of the 2nd Regiment received rifles, specially purchased. The 3rd Infantry was given the Enfield rifled musket, probably bought by the state; thereafter small arms were provided by the War Department directly. The state did, however, purchase 960 Windsor rifles from Massachusetts in October 1861.

Following the Civil War the entire Volunteer Militia infantry force was given the U.S. Model 1861 or 1863 rifle musket. The cavalry at first was armed only with Model 1860 sabers, but later received Remington carbines and army revolvers; the two light batteries were only sabers.

Colors and Flags

New Hampshire, from the American Revolution to modern times, paid more than usual attention to its military flags. The only complete set of regimental colors dating from the Revolution hangs in Concord. In 1792 militia legislation provided for the issue to each regiment of a national and a regimental color, and this issue continued to be authorized as late as 1842. When the old militia regiments were broken up in 1851, the issue of colors, of course, terminated.

When regiments were again formed by the state in 1861 the practice was reinstituted. There was no legally authorized state flag but one was devised by the governor and Council for use as a regimental color. The field was white silk, the fringe yellow, and the cords and tassels blue and white. On the obverse was painted the national arms and the designation of the regiment: on the reverse, the arms of New Nampshire. To this, later, was added a national color, usually presented by private individuals.

The Militia Law of 1867 required the Adjutant General to furnish each regiment with colors. It is not certain what designs these were given, but they seem to have been similar to U.S. regulation patterns except that the letters "N.H." took the place of "U.S." on the ribbon.

REFERENCE

"The four companies of the Second, left Annapolis, were detailed, by oder of General Scott, to the service of guarding the telegraph and radioad track between Washington and Annapolis Junetion."

"Introducting upon the establishment of the lines on the 24th, details from all regiments were put to work in constructing entrushments and reducits, and it is among the chief houses of this brigade that the first regular work constructed by the matismal troops at the beginning of the our, and the first over which the nation's flag was flung out, was completed by the busings arms of lensymen, many of atom norked with inflagging vigor and industry with twols at their command. During the whole period of the war, those works stood as monuments of the miscular activity and vigor of our volunteers; and it was only not that the principal forification, having been built exclusively by freezimen, should be usined, as it was, Fort Rungon, and so known ever after."

"Seventeen gios have been mounted at the fortifications, and several more are on the ground." Extraxt from a letter dated 1 June, 1861

The above painting, New York & Bracewel', is by Don Trainut, modern America's finest historial artist. Regulation U.S. artillery colors bearing the designation of a light battery; these appear to have been issued late in the war and were clearly for ceremonial use, since they were too large to be carried on horseback.

Cavalry standards and guidons, and artillery guidons, were of U.S. regulation size and design. Some standards bore national and others, state arms. One interesting example displayed merely a giant butterfly—probably the device of the 3rd Cavalry Regiment, called "The Butterflies." Infantry markers appear to have usually been made of blue silk, and had yellow or gold fringes and designations like: "10th REGt/ N.J.V."

Records of the Quartermaster General show that in 1865 many of the regiments still in service were presented with new flags, usually national and regimental colors. Commencing in 1866, the regiments and battalions of the Rifle Corps were issued national and regimental colors, markers and slings for color bearers.

Special thanks are due Foster Tallman, Fellow of the Company of Military Historians, who, at his own expense and with great enterprise, photographed all the New Jersey Civil War colors and flags which rest in the state capitol. We are indebted to the late Major Generals Donald W. McGowan and James S. Cantwell, for their invaluable assistance, as well as to the late Brigadier General Chester A. Charles and Colonel Samuel F. Brink, formerly of the Jersey Department of Defense. Miss Betty H. Girard of the War Records Division of the Department was Lunny, and Howard Wiseman, formerly of the New Jersey Historical Society, gave unstintingly of their time and knowledge.

★ TERRITORIES OF NEW MEXICO ANDARIZONA ★

The Territory of New Mexico was part of the vast domain acquired from Mexico by the annexation of Texas, the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, and the Gadsden Purchase. In 1851 it embraced the present area of the state of New Mexico, nearly all of what is now Arizona, and a small portion of present-day Colorado. It was further enlarged in 1854 by the purchase from Mexico of over 45,000 square miles along its southern border. In 1861 a portion of territor the northeast was transferred to Colorado and in 1863 all of the land west of the 109th meridian was organized as the Territory of Arizona.

The population of New Mexico was given as 80,567 in 1860, exclusive of Indians. The vast majority were native Mexicans. Only 1,168 of the persons counted were natives of other parts of the United States, and 5,479 were foreign born. The inhabitants as a whole were apathetic toward the issues of the Civil War, but when Confederate forces invaded the Territory in 1861, and were everywhere successful at first, they proved unexpectedly loyal to the Union. Despite the prevalence of a system of peonage for debt, under which large numbers of Indian captives were held in practical bondage, slavery as practiced in the South was generally opposed as an institution. In the campaigns of 1861 and 1862 the Southern commanders were surprised and disappointed at the failure of the native New Mexicans to rally to their side, and some of this reluctance can be laid to their traditional hatred of the Texans who composed the invading columns. Only one Confederate command was raised in the Territory.

The military protection of the Territory prior to 1861 was afforded by the Regular Army, its efforts being concentrated on restraining the Apache, Kiowa, Comanche and Navajo Indians, the first an especially savage mountain people. On 1 January 1861 the War Department maintained 13 stations in the eastern half of the Territory with some 39 companies, 14 of which were mounted. Many of the Regular officers in the area, especially immediately before the outbreak of the Civil War, were from the Southern states. When the war came these men resigned their commissions and entered the Confederate service, but in most instances they were unable to take the rank and file with them. Headed by General Henry H. Sibley, the Confederate officers withdrew to Texas to organize their forces. In the first week of July 1 the initial element of the Confederate invasion column reached the border of the Territory at El Paso, on the Rio Grande.

Due to uncertainty on the part of the territorial governors as to the temper of the native enrolled militia, it had not been thought prudent to give them weapons. The Federal garrisons had been considered adequate for the protection of the region. In 1860, however, the policy was altered and steps were taken to equip New Mexicans to defend themselves against Indian attack. In that year the War Department sent 220 Model 1841 rifles, 10 Colt rifles, 20 Sharps carbines, and 20 Colt navy revolvers to the Territory and a militia force of about 1,000 men was partially organized.

No call was made on New Mexico for troops in April 1861 but in May the Secretary of War wrote Governor Henry Connelly that a quota of two three-year regiments had been assigned to the Territory, for use against both Indians and Confederates. "The regular troops now in service," he added, "will be mostly withdrawn." As a result of this and subsequent calls, by the end of 1861 four volunteer infantry regiments had been raised for three years, plus a fifth of mounted infantry for six months. These commands did not conduct themselves well in the fighting of that winter. In May 1862, when the Confederate forces had been driven out of New Mexico, they were broken up, the best material being selected and consolidated to form the 1st Cavalry Regiment, under the command of Colonel Christopher (Kit) Carson. It was entirely occupied in operations against Indians in New Mexico and Arizona. During the following year a new 1st Infantry Regiment was formed to garrison the several forts and stations, now denuded of Regulars.

In the meanwhile, Governor Connelly had experimented with calling out his militia to help stem the Confederate invasion and do something about Indian depredations. Between November 1861 and January 1862 he organized a regiment, a battalion, and seven or eight companies, all infantry, for three-month or 60-day enlistments. The experiment was not repeated during the course of the war.

The War Department undertook to clothe, arm, and equip all troops raised in the Territory. Federal authorities made every effort to protect the government depot at Albuquerque and later to remove the important stores there to Fort Union, where extensive storage facilities were built. Supplies were wagoned across the plains at great expense to support the Federal effort and General Sibley's Confederates were never able to capture Fort Union.

New Mexican troops, volunteers and militia alike, wore U.S. Army uniforms, although supplemented at times with native clothing. There were no distinctive territorial insignia or buttons, and there is no evidence that the colors carried were anything but regulation pattern.

In January 1861 there were reported to be 2,333 muskets and 2,248 rifles in the Fort Union Ordnance Depot. These seem to have been Model 1842 and converted muskets, caliber .69; and Models 1841 and 1855 rifles, calibers .54 and .58; and a small supply of more up-to-date arms like Sharps carbines and Colt navy revolvers. This slim supply had to serve for both Regulars, volunteers and militia until new shipments were received. When they came they seem to have consisted chiefly of Belgian and French caliber .69 muskets and rifles.

Confederate Arizona

On 29 May 1862 the Confederate Secretary of War authorized Colonel John R. Baylor, "Governor of Arizona," to raise "five battalions of partisan rangers of six companies each, either mounted or on foot, as may be found most practicable, . . . "The men were to furnish their own arms, equipments and horses, and, of course, their own clothes. Enlistment was to be for the war except for one battalion, composed of men not liable to conscription, which could be enlisted for twelve months.

Only one battalion seems to have been raised. It contained three companies and was organized during the latter part of 1862. It served in Sibley's brigade and not in an "Arizona" brigade as is sometimes stated. It was broken up about May 1863 and the men assigned to various Texas commands.

flags? One very probably was the Poughkeepsie national color (E) which Gates had brought back with him and turned over to the Bureau; the other we cannot identify.

A few days later, on 22 February, the entire furlough battalion went by train to Albany in order—as expressed by the regimental historian—"to present to Master Geo. S. Pratt, son of the late Colonel Geo. W. Pratt, the old regimental flag carried by the regiment when Colonel Pratt was mortally wounded at Bull Run." No less than the governor responded for Master Pratt in accepting this flag. Obviously this color was either (B) or (D); it could well have been both, since both about this time came into the hands of the Pratt family.

One more flag event occurred before the men on furlough returned to the regiment. On 18 March 1864 they were given a national color by a Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kugler, which the good lady had made by hand (G). The reason she gave was that she had been partly responsible for keeping her husband from reenlisting in the Twentieth in 1861. With that the battalion marched to Rondout and embarked on the steamer Thomas Cornell for New York and the front. The regiment now had in hand a national (G) and a regimental color (F).

A little less than two years later the Ulster Guard was again assembled in Kingston; the war was over, the men had been mustered out in Virginia and returned home as individuals. But this was no volunteer regiment and an armory awaited them. Arrangements had been made before they started north to assemble on Washington's Birthday and receive their final battle flag, a regimental color which had been obtained for them by the citizens of Kingston (H).

This last flag is the only one fully described in Gates' history. It seems almost certain that it was made by Tiffany & Co. Of blue silk, it had the state arms embroidered on it, over which was the designation: "ULSTER GUARD, TWENTIETH N.Y.S.M." Also embroidered on the obverse were 13 battle honors commencing with "Washington, April, 1861" and ending with "Richmond, April, 1865"—all four years of the war. This color must have stayed with the regiment, but its location today is unrecorded.

The regimental history concludes the account with these words:

On the evening of the same day the officers of the regiment held a meeting at Brown's Hotel, in the village of Kingston, at which it was unanimously resolved that the regiment should be immediately reorganized under the National Guard law of the State; and designating, on motion of Colonel Hardenburgh, as their choice for commandant, Colonel T.B. Gates.

The "Old Twentieth" was back in business again.

What happened to these flags? Of four we have no record (A,C,G and H). Two (E and F) were deposited in the Bureau of Military Statistics during or shortly after the Civil War and are now on public display in the Capitol at Albany. The two remaining wandered far afield before they returned to New York State in September 1961.

The two oldest regimental colors (B and D), as has been mentioned, came into the hands of the late Colonel Pratt's family in 1864 or shortly thereafter. In 1866 his son—the "Master Pratt" who had been presented with at least one of them—died and his mother kept the flags. Her only other child, Elizabeth Tibbits Pratt, married Count Amedee Gasquet James in 1881 and lived thereafter in France. From this marriage came four children and to one of them, Count George de Gasquet James, Mrs. Pratt willed the two flags. George never married and when he died he willed them to his nephew, Count Henri de Lebran of Chateau Bas, Le Verneique, Bouches du Rhone, France. In 1961 the Count de Libran graciously returned the colors to New York State and to the regiment which had once carried them.

Dear Tom,

Besides being associated with the 71st Infantry Regiment, I am also a painter of military miniatures (although my last figure was painted in 1993-a group of the 9th Virginia at Gettysburg). I should say that I am a purchaser of miniature military kits!

Now to answer your question regarding what we wore in combat in 1861. That plate you mention from Military Collectors and Historians is somewhat misleading in that it doesn't show any field uniform and although they revisited the regiment with a few other plates, they never again did a Civil War plate of us. Figure wise the closest you will come would be the Imrie Risley 54MM of the 7th Regiment or the 100MM Michael Roberts figure of the same unit. You would have to remove the (black) cuff to which three buttons are attached on those figures.

From top to bottom here is the information: Kepi (the regular standard French type kepi not the forage type) There was a brass 71 on the front center. Company D, which had been an engineer company, wore the castle at that location. Nothing else was worn on the kepi which was dark blue. Shell Jacket dark blue with nine buttons down the front (probably NYS buttons but might be regimental). Three buttons on each sleeve but no fancy cuff. This jacket has light or medium blue shoulder straps, otherwise plain. Pants light blue with black stripe down the seams, edged in gold. For dress and parade they wore white crossbelts and belts. Crossbelt plate was brass with German silver 71, belt plate was company letter. For combat they wore the regular belt equipment (black) with oval brass plate on belt and box (probably NYS). All officers wore the frock coat with normal button arrangement. Officer's kepis were blue but with the gold lace like some of the confederates. In their 1862 and 1863 service they were much less formal!

In May 2001 our Association went down to Bull Run to place a wayside sign on the battlefield. It is located where the regiment fought the 4th Alabama on Matthews Hill near the parking lot (north of the "old Stone House" on the right of Sudley Road). This sign has four period photos of the Regiment showing the above uniforms plus our Regimental crest. There is also a book "American Military Equipage 1851-1872" Volume II State Forces by Frederick P. Todd (1983 Chatham Square Press). This book has an excellent photo of the field uniform.

Good luck with your project.

Carolina. A red and white forked silk guidon with gold fringe exists at Raleigh, painted in white and gold letters: "1st. Co. 1st. Batl./N.C. Artillery."

There remains to mention what was probably the earliest battle honor authorized during the Civil War. The 1st Regiment of Volunteers under Colonel Daniel Harvey Hill played so leading a part in the first land battle of the war at Big Bethel, Va., on 10 June 1861, that the Convention, still in session, directed that the word "BETHEL" be inscribed on its color. On 9 September the Quartermaster General sent the regiment, then at Yorktown, a state flag so inscribed.

DO1011th Regt (reorgan during winter 1861-1862)

"Gray or blue blouse" authorized at intial organ; comps generally wore distinctive clothing. Gray felt hat, looped up on both sides, with feather commonly worn. Fall 1861: state uniform. First regimental color was that of Buncombe Riflemen (Comp E): M1861 CSA flag; later had "BETHEL" embroidered on it. Second regimental color was presented in Sept 1861: state flag with "BETHEL" inscribed. Initially armed with M1842 musket except 1 comp with flintlocks.

Union North Carolina

Union sentiment was strong in North Carolina before the war and she was the next to the last state to join the Confederacy. Yet when she did join she furnished some 125,000 soldiers and sustained one-fourth of the Confederate losses. Nonetheless, not all of her citizens were won over to the Southern cause and when opportunity came some took up arms on the Union side.

The opportunity arrived as a result of Burnside's expedition which, early in 1862, established a foothold on the North Carolina coast and was never dislodged. During the course of the occupation the Union command raised two white infantry regiments. Later in the war two mounted regiments and a company of scouts and guides were raised from the western portions of the state and organized in Tennessee.

Four Negro regiments were formed, all in the coastal region of the state.

The 1st North Carolina Volunteers was formed from ten counties of volunteer state militias. Companies and volunteer units are as follows: A. Edgecombe Guards, B. Hornets Nest Rifles, C. Charlotte Greys, D. Orange Light Infantry, E. Buncombe Riflemen, F. Lafayette Light Infantry G. Burke Rifles, H. Fayetteville Independent Light Infantry, I. Enfield Blues and K. Southern Stars.

On May 11, 1861, the 1st NC Volunteers were formally organized. Now the 1st would go to Virginia and see its first action at Big Bethel on June 10, 1861. They would be led by Colonel D.H. Hill, brother-in-law of Stonewall Jackson. In the engagement at Bethel, Private Henry Lawson Wyatt would be the first and only death. Private Wyatt was the first Confederate dead of the war. The 1st would now return to North Carolina where it would be re-formed into the 11th North Carolina Troops and asigned to the Department of North Carolina. For the next two years the 11th would serve in eastern North Carolina. The newly formed 11th NC would be made up of ten companies: three from Mecklenburg County, two from Burke County and one from Bertie, Chowan, Orange, Lincoln and Buncombe. The 11th would now see action in eastern North Carolina. They would do provo duty around the city of Wilmington, N.C., and also see some action in White Hall and the Seige of Washington, N.C.

In the spring of 1863 the 11th would be called up to the front in Virginia. Now the men of the 11th NC would go into the service of Gen. Robert E. Lee's Army of Northern Virginia. The men from the Bethel Regiment would now fight at Gettysbury July 1-3, 1863; Bristoe Station October 14, 1863; The Wilderness May 5, 1864; Spotsylvania May 7, 1864; and Cold Harbor June 3, 1864. The battles that took place from June 1864 to April 1865 at the seige of Petersburg are as follows: Jerusalem Plank, Globe Tavern, Reams Station, Jones Farm, Burgess Mill and Hatcher Run. The 11th NC surrendered at Appomattox Court House, Va., on April 9, 1865. The 11th NC Troops never lost or surrendered its colors. The 11th NC served in A.P. Hill's division from 1863 to 1865.
