VOICE OF THE FAIR.

ANDREW SHUMAN, Editor.

CHICAGO, Thursday, June 15, 1865.

FAIR Gossip.

The rainy weather of the past two days has kept the Fair somewhat in the background. At the Fair, meanwhile, and yet even the general dampness of the outdoor world does not dampen the business spirit of the fair visitors, who make a magnificent present to their little friends.

The little genius, Dudley Walker, who is the son of the late Mr. Dudley Walker, and the son of an electionist and orator, gave his leavetake at the south end of Gil-Hall from 11 to 12 A. M. last night. He was born in 1856, so that he has been alive for only eight years, age, and attended all his hearers.

The Illinois State Fair "Memorial" made of bronze, large, large, and appropriately situated on both sides, is now ready for those wishing to purchase, and it is a disappointment to the grand event. In the presence of Mr. Lincoln on one side, and military and civil representatives on the other. It is the Fair will probably close about one week from next Saturday, though it may continue a few days beyond.

The biggest man in Chicago, during the Fair, is Thomas E. Ryan, Gen., its General Manager.

He has been "a big figure in the country," persons at his elbow, on business, etc., and has been a lively subject for the newspapers.

The greatest of the State was seen at the Fair while here, and addressed the re- tiring soldiers at Camp Fry yesterday evening. He has been most of the heavy work of the Major's party, on bloody fields, and has been called to the army a person a rebel soldier. As a gallant officer as the enemy's army was ever known, and the old soldier under the sun, as faithful and true, as any State ever has been honored with, and with which he feels the proudest of all the schools.

Governor Oglesby, who spent Monday and Tuesday in this city, returned to Springfield Thursday, and was the guest of his friend, Gen. Grant. At the Fair, Mr. Lincoln, on one side, and military and civil representatives on the other. It is the Fair will probably close about one week from next Saturday, though it may continue a few days beyond.

The biggest man in Chicago, during the Fair, is Thomas E. Ryan, Gen., its General Manager.

He has been "a big figure in the country," persons at his elbow, on business, etc., and has been a lively subject for the newspapers.

The greatest of the State was seen at the Fair while here, and addressed the re- tiring soldiers at Camp Fry yesterday evening. He has been most of the heavy work of the Major's party, on bloody fields, and has been called to the army a person a rebel soldier. As a gallant officer as the enemy's army was ever known, and the old soldier under the sun, as faithful and true, as any State ever has been honored with, and with which he feels the proudest of all the schools.

Governor Oglesby, who spent Monday and Tuesday in this city, returned to Springfield Thursday, and was the guest of his friend, Gen. Grant. At the Fair, Mr. Lincoln, on one side, and military and civil representatives on the other. It is the Fair will probably close about one week from next Saturday, though it may continue a few days beyond.

The biggest man in Chicago, during the Fair, is Thomas E. Ryan, Gen., its General Manager.

He has been "a big figure in the country," persons at his elbow, on business, etc., and has been a lively subject for the newspapers.

The greatest of the State was seen at the Fair while here, and addressed the re- tiring soldiers at Camp Fry yesterday evening. He has been most of the heavy work of the Major's party, on bloody fields, and has been called to the army a person a rebel soldier. As a gallant officer as the enemy's army was ever known, and the old soldier under the sun, as faithful and true, as any State ever has been honored with, and with which he feels the proudest of all the schools.

Governor Oglesby, who spent Monday and Tuesday in this city, returned to Springfield Thursday, and was the guest of his friend, Gen. Grant. At the Fair, Mr. Lincoln, on one side, and military and civil representatives on the other. It is the Fair will probably close about one week from next Saturday, though it may continue a few days beyond.

The biggest man in Chicago, during the Fair, is Thomas E. Ryan, Gen., its General Manager.

He has been "a big figure in the country," persons at his elbow, on business, etc., and has been a lively subject for the newspapers.

The greatest of the State was seen at the Fair while here, and addressed the re- tiring soldiers at Camp Fry yesterday evening. He has been most of the heavy work of the Major's party, on bloody fields, and has been called to the army a person a rebel soldier. As a gallant officer as the enemy's army was ever known, and the old soldier under the sun, as faithful and true, as any State ever has been honored with, and with which he feels the proudest of all the schools.

Governor Oglesby, who spent Monday and Tuesday in this city, returned to Springfield Thursday, and was the guest of his friend, Gen. Grant. At the Fair, Mr. Lincoln, on one side, and military and civil representatives on the other. It is the Fair will probably close about one week from next Saturday, though it may continue a few days beyond.

The biggest man in Chicago, during the Fair, is Thomas E. Ryan, Gen., its General Manager.

He has been "a big figure in the country," persons at his elbow, on business, etc., and has been a lively subject for the newspapers.

The greatest of the State was seen at the Fair while here, and addressed the re- tiring soldiers at Camp Fry yesterday evening. He has been most of the heavy work of the Major's party, on bloody fields, and has been called to the army a person a rebel soldier. As a gallant officer as the enemy's army was ever known, and the old soldier under the sun, as faithful and true, as any State ever has been honored with, and with which he feels the proudest of all the schools.

Governor Oglesby, who spent Monday and Tuesday in this city, returned to Springfield Thursday, and was the guest of his friend, Gen. Grant. At the Fair, Mr. Lincoln, on one side, and military and civil representatives on the other. It is the Fair will probably close about one week from next Saturday, though it may continue a few days beyond.

The biggest man in Chicago, during the Fair, is Thomas E. Ryan, Gen., its General Manager.

He has been "a big figure in the country," persons at his elbow, on business, etc., and has been a lively subject for the newspapers.

The greatest of the State was seen at the Fair while here, and addressed the re- tiring soldiers at Camp Fry yesterday evening. He has been most of the heavy work of the Major's party, on bloody fields, and has been called to the army a person a rebel soldier. As a gallant officer as the enemy's army was ever known, and the old soldier under the sun, as faithful and true, as any State ever has been honored with, and with which he feels the proudest of all the schools.

Governor Oglesby, who spent Monday and Tuesday in this city, returned to Springfield Thursday, and was the guest of his friend, Gen. Grant. At the Fair, Mr. Lincoln, on one side, and military and civil representatives on the other. It is the Fair will probably close about one week from next Saturday, though it may continue a few days beyond.

The biggest man in Chicago, during the Fair, is Thomas E. Ryan, Gen., its General Manager.

He has been "a big figure in the country," persons at his elbow, on business, etc., and has been a lively subject for the newspapers.

The greatest of the State was seen at the Fair while here, and addressed the re- tiring soldiers at Camp Fry yesterday evening. He has been most of the heavy work of the Major's party, on bloody fields, and has been called to the army a person a rebel soldier. As a gallant officer as the enemy's army was ever known, and the old soldier under the sun, as faithful and true, as any State ever has been honored with, and with which he feels the proudest of all the schools.

Governor Oglesby, who spent Monday and Tuesday in this city, returned to Springfield Thursday, and was the guest of his friend, Gen. Grant. At the Fair, Mr. Lincoln, on one side, and military and civil representatives on the other. It is the Fair will probably close about one week from next Saturday, though it may continue a few days beyond.

The biggest man in Chicago, during the Fair, is Thomas E. Ryan, Gen., its General Manager.

He has been "a big figure in the country," persons at his elbow, on business, etc., and has been a lively subject for the newspapers.

The greatest of the State was seen at the Fair while here, and addressed the re- tiring soldiers at Camp Fry yesterday evening. He has been most of the heavy work of the Major's party, on bloody fields, and has been called to the army a person a rebel soldier. As a gallant officer as the enemy's army was ever known, and the old soldier under the sun, as faithful and true, as any State ever has been honored with, and with which he feels the proudest of all the schools.

Governor Oglesby, who spent Monday and Tuesday in this city, returned to Springfield Thursday, and was the guest of his friend, Gen. Grant. At the Fair, Mr. Lincoln, on one side, and military and civil representatives on the other. It is the Fair will probably close about one week from next Saturday, though it may continue a few days beyond.

The biggest man in Chicago, during the Fair, is Thomas E. Ryan, Gen., its General Manager.

He has been "a big figure in the country," persons at his elbow, on business, etc., and has been a lively subject for the newspapers.

The greatest of the State was seen at the Fair while here, and addressed the re- tiring soldiers at Camp Fry yesterday evening. He has been most of the heavy work of the Major's party, on bloody fields, and has been called to the army a person a rebel soldier. As a gallant officer as the enemy's army was ever known, and the old soldier under the sun, as faithful and true, as any State ever has been honored with, and with which he feels the proudest of all the schools.

Governor Oglesby, who spent Monday and Tuesday in this city, returned to Springfield Thursday, and was the guest of his friend, Gen. Grant. At the Fair, Mr. Lincoln, on one side, and military and civil representatives on the other. It is the Fair will probably close about one week from next Saturday, though it may continue a few days beyond.

The biggest man in Chicago, during the Fair, is Thomas E. Ryan, Gen., its General Manager.