VOICE OF THE FAIR.

ANDREW SHUMAN, Editor.

Chicago, Thursday, June 8, 1893.

FAIR GOSPEL.

And will the wonder grow! The interest in the Fair shatters the ball. The columns close to be always empty. The visitors are not seen in the streets, and the donations still come in. The Fair has been open for a week and a day—and about $9,000,000 have been realized. These are 300,000 times the receipts of all the other fairs, the greatest of which is the Crystal Palace. The visitors are beginning to arrive in large numbers, and the popular desire to visit the Fair appears to be increasing.

The principles of sifting is quietly sus- pended. The visitors are taking the place of the judges. The dispatches of the Daily News and the Chicago Tribune are stopped. The visitors are the judges, the director, and at all times the most important part of the fair. The Fair is managed by the best of men, who are all agreed in their opinions on the subject. They are the most important part of the fair, and the best of all men.

The fair is managed by the best of men, who are all agreed in their opinions on the subject. They are the most important part of the fair, and the best of all men.

WHERE THE FAIR MONEY GOES.

The following letter from the President of the Northwestern Sanitary Commission; its sufficient reason for continued support; and what is to be done with the money raised from this fair.

Mr. Sherman is expected to visit the Fair next week. He will study the plan and the results. Everybody will go to see him see the results of those great campaign which broke the shield of the rebellion and laid the foundations of our commonwealth.

Mes. Richard Yates, the "soldier-squire," as he so delightfully called, was one of the wel- comed visitors. He was also one of the best of the fair. He was among the first to arrive, and the popular desire to visit the Fair appeared to be increasing.

The principles of sifting is quietly sus- pended. The visitors are taking the place of the judges. The dispatches of the Daily News and the Chicago Tribune are stopped. The visitors are the judges, the director, and at all times the most important part of the fair. The Fair is managed by the best of men, who are all agreed in their opinions on the subject. They are the most important part of the fair, and the best of all men.

The fair is managed by the best of men, who are all agreed in their opinions on the subject. They are the most important part of the fair, and the best of all men.

We have the pleasure last evening of seeing Mr. John W. C. Bartlett, the gentleman who has been in charge of the Fair for the past year, and who has been a faithful and able servant of the national government. He was presented to the visitors by the President of the United States.

The expenditure for the fair is very large, and the demand has not yet in any way lessened.

B. R. McCMAHON, Pro's.

MAJ. GENERAL HOOKER.

We had the pleasure last evening of seeing Mr. John W. C. Bartlett, the gentleman who has been in charge of the Fair for the past year, and who has been a faithful and able servant of the national government. He was presented to the visitors by the President of the United States.

The expenditure for the fair is very large, and the demand has not yet in any way lessened.

B. R. McCMAHON, Pro's.