The Dancing Celebration at Floren-

cchio.

America seems young and virgin when we think of all Italy gathering to honor the memory of our great nation. Fifty years ago, this nation did not exist. On the 15th and 16th of May, this year, at the city of Florence, a grand festival was held in honor of this great nation.

On the 15th, King Victor Emmanuel inaugurated the ceremonies in the Piazza della Signoria. A爵 grant was presented to the city, with a quotation from the “Laure” on the black, together with allegorical figures on the Arch of Triumph. Among these figures are those of Dante and Boccaccio. An inaugural address was read by Professor Ciotti, in which he spoke of the beauty of the city and its history. The Arch of Triumph was then opened, with a parade of troops, and all the company then signed their names to it. During the celebration, the bust of Dante, which is preserved in the Biblioteca Laurenziana, was unveiled.

A FEAST FOR THE PHILOSOPHERS.—Of all the festivities connected with this great event, the most appropriate was the feast of the philosophers. The busts of the great men of Florence were placed on the pedestal of the fountain, and the figures were adorned with crowns and garlands. The figures were then lighted, and the statues of the great men were placed on the pedestals. This was a beautiful sight, and the entire city was filled with music and beauty.

The Queen of Sweden, in magnificent state, rode in state carriages, followed by the nobles of the city. The king and queen were accompanied by the great men of the city, and the entire city was filled with music and beauty. The queen was received with great honor and the entire city was filled with music and beauty.
